COMMISSIONER STAPLES CELEBRATES GO TEXAN RESTAURANT ROUND-UP AT JOHNNY CACE'S SEAFOOD AND STEAK HOUSE IN LONGVIEW

Lunch showcases Texas-grown and raised products in support of farmers and ranchers

LONGVIEW – Agriculture Commissioner Todd Staples was joined today by elected officials and members of the agriculture industry at Johnny Cace's Seafood and Steak House in Longview. A lunch, made with fresh Texas-grown ingredients, was served as part of the GO TEXAN Restaurant Round-Up, presented by Farm Credit. The Round-Up is the only statewide, weeklong dine-out event in Texas created to honor Texas farmers and ranchers who provide us with the safest and most affordable food supply in the world.

"Showcasing the best of Texas is what the GO TEXAN Restaurant Round-Up is all about," Commissioner Staples said. "When restaurants like Johnny Cace's Seafood and Steak House choose foods grown by Texas farmers and ranchers, more jobs are created and our economy benefits. Through the Round-Up, all Texans have the opportunity to celebrate Texas by dining at restaurants serving their customers locally grown and raised products."

In addition to supporting Texas agriculture, the GO TEXAN Restaurant Round-Up also benefits local communities, as many restaurants are donating a portion of their proceeds to local food banks.

"Johnny Cace's Seafood and Steak House is excited to be part of this effort to promote quality, local ingredients and the work of Texas farmers and ranchers,” owner Gerard Cace said. “And it’s also a great added benefit to support area food banks.”

The GO TEXAN Restaurant Round-Up runs Sept. 28-Oct. 2. For more information, visit www.gotexanrestaurantroundup.com.
